One week of friendship in Bulgaria

First, I want to thank all the people who made this meeting in Bulgaria possible. I mean our special teachers. We all need to applaud them for the work they did for us to have this unforgettable experience.

But let's stop talking about the hard work it took to make everything alright, we should always remember the good time we had here in Bulgaria. We don't have to cry because it's over, we have to feel good because it happened. If we didn't take part in the project, maybe we wouldn't be able to meet.

For me this was the best week of my life. Not because of the food and the boring presentations, it was special for me because I made a lot of new friends. Didn't we all come here to do this? Yeah we did! This is the main reason of all the international projects to happen, because the friendship is the best kind of relationship. It doesn't matter if you are male, female, transgender, Christian, Muslim, black, white, yellow, green, red or any word that humans use to name the others. We don't have to look at someone's appearance, we have to look what is inside.

I strongly believe that some day after the project is over, I will meet some of the people I met here. Because you all know that the world is small and unpredictable. I hope that the guests aren't disappointed from the Bulgarian hosts, because we have tried to make their visits unforgettable.

If you are still reading this essay I want to tell you that you should accept who are you, not to change because of someone else. Try it and you will see! This is one of the most valuable things that I learned during the project. Because if someone likes you it's visible, and if s/he doesn't he or she loses. But you have to accept the others if you want them to accept you. You should never make laugh at someone's choice to live their life! Because everyone deserves to be understood but not everyone wants to be understood.

If someone asks me about the experience I got from this project, I don't know enough English words to describe the project and the time I spend with my new friends. But just in five days I have learned a lot of about the culture of the others. My guest from Italy doesn't speak English very well, but we found a way to communicate. In this point I'm so grateful to Google translate. But in every bad thing there is something good, in my case I have learned some Italian.

At the end I want to tell you that every friendship is priceless. Because you can't buy happiness this is why we have friends.
